Christopher Dock Mennonite School

Lansdale, Pennsylvania

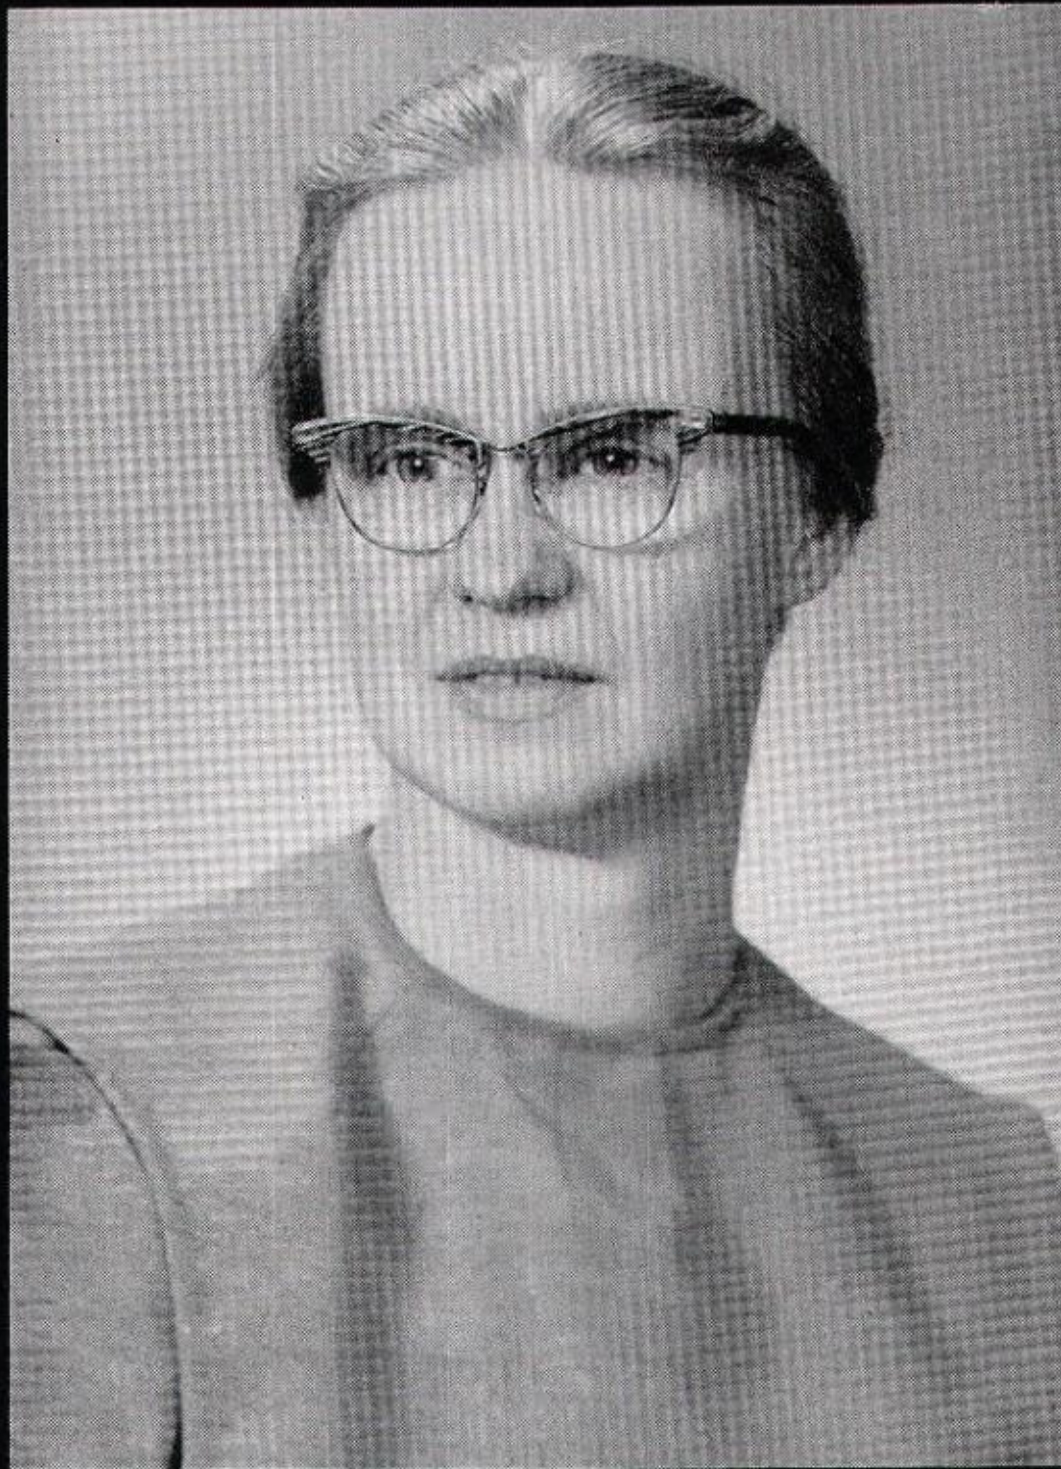

Presenting . . .

*The 1959
Schul-
Andenken*

Forward

Many have left the stately columns of Christopher Dock with fond recollections of their high school days. In leaving our beloved Alma Mater we have tried to recapture and record a few of the innumerable experiences which we treasure. We hope that as you leaf through these reminiscences you may share our deep appreciation and loyal devotion for our school.

Dedication

Miss Emma Landis

"You give but little when you give of your possessions. It is when you give of yourself that you truly give."

Kahlil Gibran

We, the class of 1959 and the Schul-Andenken staff, dedicate this '59 Schul-Andenken to you, for you have truly given untiringly of yourself. We will not soon forget your tasty doughnuts, delicious pies, and other treats; but more than this we shall remember your warm friendliness, your ready smile, your witty replies to our unceasing remarks, and your willingness to give of yourself for our enjoyment.

We hope that, at least in a small measure, this book will express our gratitude for your kindness.

Dear Graduates of 1959:

Christopher Dock is dedicated to teaching the truth. We believe that truth is not taught except in the light of Christ "as the truth is in Jesus." Whatever your attainments, then, in God's world, we want you to know that we join the Apostle John when he says, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth," III John 4.

Sincerely yours,

*Paul R. Clemens, Chairman
Board of Trustees*

Principal's Message

Dear Graduates:

It may profit you to remember that there are certain commonly accepted goals which are illusionary and cannot be attained. Success, happiness, security, and a host of their companions are not goals that are pursued and caught, but they accompany the fulfillment of true goals.

When you set your goals, remember there is nothing as real as God. He was before all things. He is everlasting. All else passes away. God remains. God became most real in Christ, for He thereby "became flesh and dwelt among us."

One goal above all is most real, "That I may win Christ and be found in Him." Christ is our most real goal for He is not an idea, or a point of attainment, or a vague ideal of life experience. He is a person who, when we know Him and choose to serve Him, becomes to us all things—whether success, or happiness, or security—He is all in all.

Class Will

Rhoda Alderfer leaves her uncontrollable blush to Mae Reinford.

Terry Alderfer imparts his love of frequenting the lunch line to Ruth Ann Landis.

Gerald Benner wishes to share with Jeanette Derstine his enthusiasm for sports.

Rhoda Bergey lends her adeptness in typing to Bruce Leatherman.

From Becky Bishop comes a very unusual liking for language study which willfully goes to Richard Weaver.

Ellen Brunk's willingness to work is to be continued by Freida Myers.

Rosemary Christophel regretfully bequeaths her name complications to Mary Nice.

Orrie Clemens desires Rhoda Detwiler and Phyllis Hunsberger to attain at least a portion of his studious nature.

Phil Clemens adds his agility on the basketball floor to Merrill Landis's store, for use in leading the junior team to a successful year.

Lorraine Clemmer is willing to lend a considerable part of her placidness to Hannah Mack, who becomes fidgety when faced with a few responsibilities.

Betty Derstine, who accurately has kept the money jingling into the senior treasury, wills her punctiliousness to June Histan whose slip-shod system of selling tickets becomes quite involved.

Gerald Derstine bequeaths his short, slight stature to Dennis Moyer, who has an over-abundance of the contrary.

Gerry Derstine shares his clear soprano voice with Bob Allebach, who occupies the lower range.

Sarah Derstine sorrowfully wishes Anna Lois Longacre to possess some of her ardor for designing bulletin boards, hoping that Anna Lois will overcome her abhorrence of it.

Anna Mae Detweiler, who much prefers pasteurized milk, sadly transmits this craving to Sonny Landis, who prefers "home-grown" milk.

Ernie Gehman wills his passion for telling jokes to Gerry Freed.

Dave Harley cheerfully hands over his aversion to reading and translating German to Rhoda Moyer, who seemingly enjoys it.

Donald Hedrick imparts his ever-ready P.O.D. answers to Lois Alderfer and Lois Mininger, who will surely need loads of them.

Annetta Heebner wills her security in driving her '47 Ford to Carl Keeler, who skids around in his '58 Plymouth.

Bob Histan, who classes everything as "small stuff," hopes that Arlene Alderfer will lose some of her appreciativeness.

Arlene Hunsberger sincerely desires Ernest Greaser to acquire some of her quiet characteristics.

John Kolb wishes that Miriam Meyers, who lives on the campus, could experience his long journey to school each day.

Clifford Kulp hopes Mervin Zook will possess a portion of his thrilling shocks, received by working with electronics, since Merv prefers the dull thud of a hammer and wood construction.

From Dave Landis goes his willingness to share cough drops in chapel to Elaine Moyer, who is usually attentive.

Mary Landis generously allows Mary Kratz to choose any of her many capabilities which will prove beneficial to her.

Nancy Lapp regretfully leaves her position as softball pitcher for Judy Moyer to fill, hoping she will use this to keep their junior team on top.

Edna Mack, who punches meal tickets, thinks Larry Kulp would make an excellent train conductor and should take her place punching tickets.

Joanna Mast thoughtfully wills her position of dishing out dessert at noon to Rachel Alderfer, whom we know would prefer this to serving the teachers.

Willie Meyers wills his ability and eagerness for mathematical subjects to Joan Alderfer.

Louise Moyer graciously bestows her ability at shorthand to Katherine Horst, who might need it for recording church history lectures.

Nancy Musselman sorrowfully wills her position as basketball forward to Louise Myers, who goes all out in playing guard.

Lorraine Rice, hoping to help him, lends Donald Brunner her power to get things done in study periods.

Abe Rittenhouse's affinity for underclassmen is passed on to John Merrill Souder.

Naomi Rittenhouse desires Earl Godshall to have her knowledge of cooking for his bachelor life and shares her voice with Elaine Ruth, who is not usually seen singing.

James Rush wills his long legs to Sam Kulp, hoping he will find more uses than two for them.

Ruth Ann Rush, who gets all tied up with responsibilities, bestows this initiative to Elvin Kolb, who could not become excited over the greatest of catastrophes.

Bill Ruth leaves his shyness of girls to Harold Kooker, who excels in social spirit.

Ruth Shisler thoughtfully leaves her habit of being lessons-conscious to Henry Longacre.

Russell Stoltzfus bequeaths his ability to descend the musical scale to a low pitch to Ronnie Nyce.

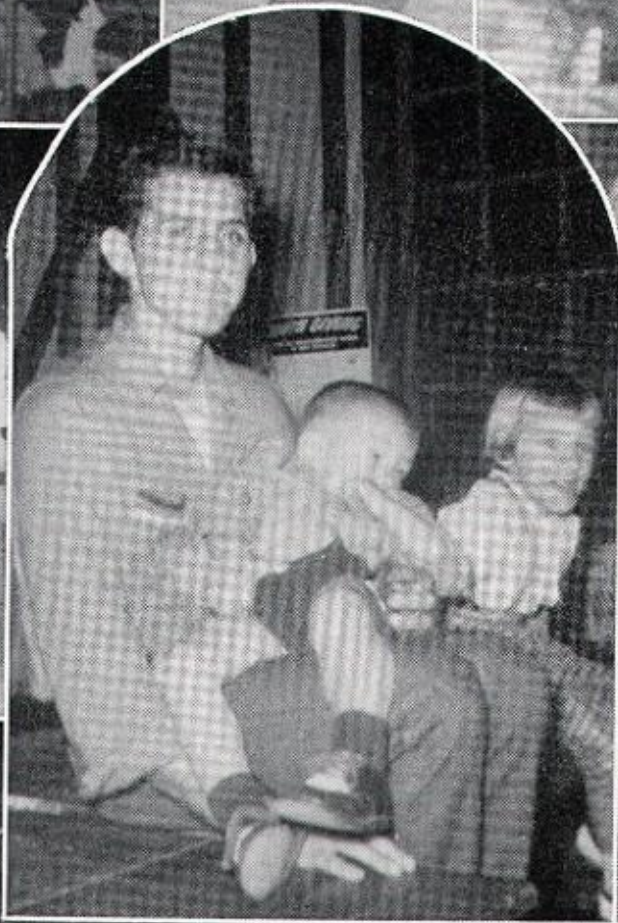

Carol Swartley wills a portion of her love for classical music to Wesley Clemmer.

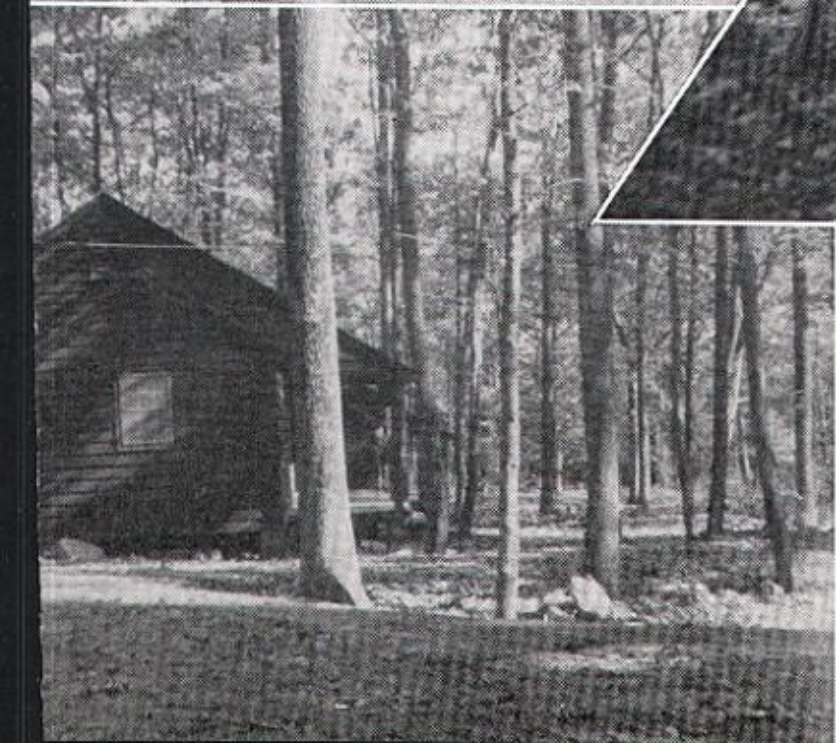

Dan Yoder bestows his chemistry spirit to Gloria Souder who would rather lose all memories of this class.

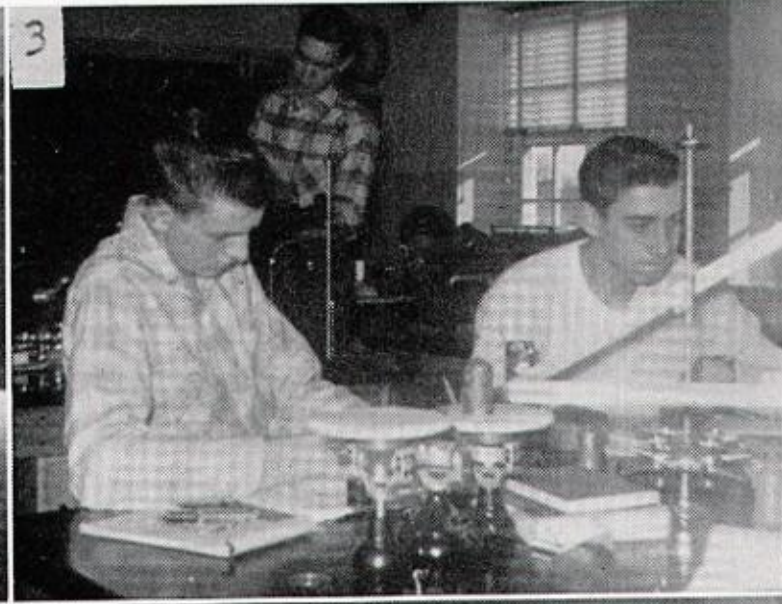

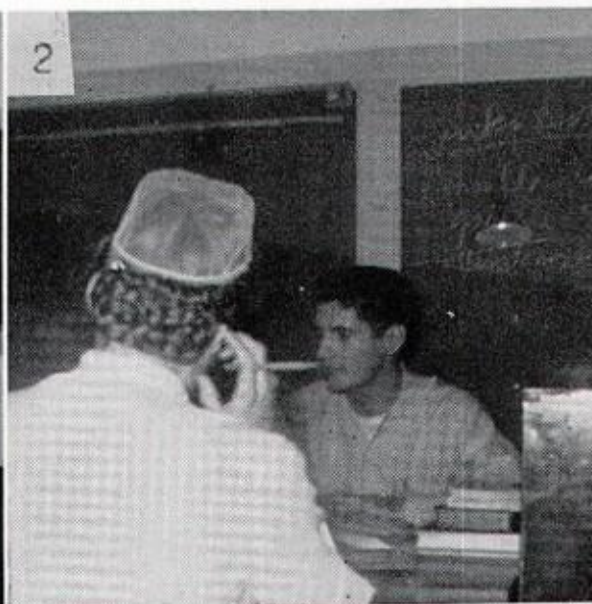

From Marty Yothers goes some timidity to Paul Shisler, who is said to always have his mouth open.

A cappella Chorus

As the tardy bell is about to ring, students come streaming from all areas of the campus to the daily chorus period. Most of them clamor to their places on the risers and begin stretching and yawning, as is the usual warming-up procedure. However, there are always a few who come hurrying in after the echoing of the bell has just disappeared, and cast guilty glances at the clock. A breathless apology is given and then the practice proceeds.

Although our practices required much concentration and hard work on the part of the chorus members and the director, we were well rewarded as the spring days arrived and the time came for our annual tour. Visiting other church schools, attending other churches, and making new friends contributed much in making this year in chorus a profitable one and in helping us to attain a deeper spiritual life.

Student Council

The purpose of the Student Council is to provide opportunity for student expression for the promotion of the general welfare of the school. Under the able leadership of David Harley, the council has founded a systematic formation of clubs, has drawn up its constitution, has sponsored a Christmas project, etc.

The nucleus of the Student Council revolves around the Religious Life, School Improvement, Fellowship, and Athletic Committees. By planning the weekly student chapels, the Religious Life Committee promotes public participation of students. Acting on the direct suggestions of students, the School Improvement Committee endeavors to assist the administration of the school. Members of the Athletic Committee have the paramount duty of organizing and directing the athletic activities on the campus. Plans for all-school socials and other fellowship ideas originate in the Fellowship Committee.
